

ROOSEVELT WINS FOURTH TERM AS PRESIDENT OF UNITED STATES

NAMED FOR FOURTH TERM; CARRIES AT LEAST 32 STATES

Receives Total of 387 Electoral Votes in 32 States

DECISIVE VERDICT Given A Democratic House and a Democratic Senate

By William K. Hutchinson
(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(INS)—The American people today had drafted president Roosevelt for a fourth term, while giving him a Democratic Congress to carry out his program for speedy victory and world peace.

The new Vice-President will be Senator Harry S. Truman, of Missouri. The President was overwhelmingly re-elected, carrying at least thirty-two States with 387 Electoral votes.

It was a decisive verdict, with round 50,000,000 voters participating.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, defeated Republican nominee, was ahead in only sixteen States early today with 44 Electoral votes. Dewey, however, ran a great race, with final calculations probably showing he was supported by about 23,000,000 voters to Roosevelt's 27,000,000.

Dewey conceded his defeat graciously in a little speech to newsmen at his Hotel Roosevelt headquarters at 3:14 a. m., EWT, which was broadcast. The President heard the broadcast and telegraphed his thanks to the Governor.

The Vice-President-elect, from Kansas City, promptly issued a statement, declaring: "It was a grand statement by Governor Dewey and it shows American sportsmanship. It is up to the people to make good the Dewey statement by winning both the war and the peace."

The outcome of the election showed the world that the American people are behind Mr. Roosevelt in his conduct of the war and in his plans to disarm both Germany and Japan for peace in the future. It was an overwhelming decision in the Electoral College, although Dewey ran strongly in all sections of the country, carried the farm belt and many rural-small town sections of the East. The President won through by sweeping the great cities.

There was little doubt but that the CIO's Political Action Committee, headed by Sidney Hillman, had a lot to do with the verdict.

It was in the great cities that Roosevelt rolled up his margin of victory. He carried New York State by rolling up 763,000 plurality in New York City, while Dewey's upstate lead was slashed by defections in large industrial cities. In State after State, he carried the big cities and the Republican pluralities in small cities, towns and farms.

CLEANED BY SCRIBES

Four former Doylestown High School students, all of whom were forced down while in combat over Germany or enemy occupied Europe, are being held prisoners of war in a German camp, believed to be north of Berlin and not far from the Baltic Sea.

All commissioned officers and members of the Air Force, they are Lieutenants Robert B. Conroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Conroy, and James Barlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Barlow, of this place; Wilbur Keck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll B. Keck, Warrington, and George F. Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Peters, Castle Valley.

One of the most recent to write home was Peters, who was forced down on March 8, 1944, and taken prisoner. A bombardier of a B-17 Flying Fortress, Peters arrived overseas in November, 1943, and it is believed he was forced down during his 17th mission last March.

Peters is believed to have been the first of the Doylestown soldiers to have arrived in the camp. In a letter written last June he informed relatives Lt. Barlow was at the camp, and in a later communication he said Lt. Conroy, pilot of a Thunderbolt fighter, after several

Mrs. Jane M. Meredith Dies In Phila. Hospital

Mrs. Jane Moyer Meredith, widow of the late Charles M. Meredith, former publisher of the Quakertown Free Press, passed away Monday morning at the Pennsylvania hospital in Philadelphia.

Well known in newspaper circles, Mrs. Meredith took an active part in the publishing of her husband's newspaper and assisted him also with the Perkasio Central News, which he owned prior to his purchase of the Quakertown Free Press in 1917.

The deceased is survived by two sons, Charles M. Meredith, Jr., publisher of the Quakertown Free Press since his father's death, and the Bangor Daily News; and Dr. John M. Meredith, neurosurgeon, of Richmond, Virginia; also one grandson, Charles Meredith. The following sisters and brothers survive her: Mrs. Hannah Gulden, of Perkasio; Mrs. Sadie Downes, of Toronto, Canada; Mrs. Robert Barnes of Cumberland, Md.; Miss Miriam Moyer, of Washington, D. C.; Samuel Moyer, of Oakland, Calif.; and Clinton Moyer, of Doylestown. Her elder brother, Squire Theodore Moyer, preceded her in death this past summer.

As a member of the Philadelphia Music Club and the First Reformed church choir, of Quakertown, Mrs. Meredith continued with her work until she entered the hospital.

The deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. Moyer, who at one time had a chain of five creameries, shipping most of his butter, cheese and other products from Perkasio. Eventually Mr. Moyer moved to Perkasio with his family and built the brick home for his family at Sixth and Chestnut streets. Funeral services will be held from her late home at Sixth and Chestnut streets, Friday, November 10, at two o'clock. Rev. Paul T. Stoudt, pastor of the First Reformed and Evangelical church at Quakertown, will officiate. The Moyer Funeral Home, of Perkasio, is making the arrangements.

PENNSYLVANIA RESULT MAY DEPEND ON SOLDIERS' BALLOTS

Harrisburg—President Roosevelt held a margin of more than 60,000 in Pennsylvania today over Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and there were indications the outcome would not be final until election boards in 67 counties opened an estimated 230,000 military ballots November 22.

Expected to be another victim of the New Deal victory was U. S. Sen. James J. Davis, of Pittsburgh. The 71-year-old lawmaker trailed his Democratic opponent, Cong. Francis J. Myers, of Philadelphia, by more than 66,000 votes in 6820 precincts.

Although 25 seats—half the membership—were at stake in the Senate, there were few chances the Democrats would upset the GOP domination. To gain control, Democrats would have to capture 19 of the Senatorial contests while the Republicans could retain power by winning only eight seats.

Roosevelt Overwhelmingly Re-elected

New York—President Roosevelt was overwhelmingly re-elected today to another term in the White House in a smashing victory over Governor Thomas E. Dewey that was mounting hourly and may even surpass his 1940 defeat of Wendell Willkie. The President either carried or led in thirty-six States, with an Electoral vote of 430.

Governor Dewey lagged far behind, carrying or leading in only twelve States, having 101 Electoral votes. Dewey may even lose three more States in which he led at 9:30 a. m. EWT. These were Indiana, where his lead was 48,000, in Ohio where he was ahead by 27,000 and in Wisconsin, where he was out in front by 16,000.

The President may well win thirty-nine States having 480 Electoral votes, leaving Dewey with nine States with fifty-one Electoral votes. If he does, it will surpass his victory over Willkie, who carried ten States with 82 Electoral votes, and even his slaughter of former President Hoover, who carried but 6 States with fifty-nine Electoral votes in 1932.

There their health is built up so they can resist the disease. The girls and boys are kept at the sanatorium until homes are provided for them. The little girl, aged 4½ years, sang for the group.

The number of directors in the organization totals 18 at present.

Reports of work of the Junior Branch and of the White Cross were made by Mrs. Roberts, of Crofton. Miss Isabelle Jones reported on activity of the Labrador Branch.

The minutes were read by Mrs. C. Burnley White in the absence of her mother, Mrs. J. W. Simons, secretary of the association. Mrs. Henry Miehle gave report of the condition of the treasury.

Ninety-eight Mexicans who for the past six months have been employed as laborers by the Pennsylvania Railroad in this area left Bristol yesterday to return to their homes in Mexico.

Thirty-seven of those who six months ago had signed contracts with the P. R. R. through the War Manpower Commission, renewed their contracts, and are remaining for six months additional.

It was stated today by a spokesman for the laborers that a large percentage of the 98 who have left expressed a desire to return to the United States in the spring to again work for the railroad company.

"The cold weather seemed to be their chief concern. Although most of Mexico is at a high elevation and they are used to cool atmosphere, they found the more intense cold of October and November too much for them."

The 37 who remain are to be given inside jobs for the winter months, working in the engine houses at Newark and Greenville, N. J.

The 98 from the workers' barracks in the third ward joined others on a special train which stopped here yesterday. They will be taken the entire route to Mexico by special train.

OUTSTANDING INVENTOR

Thomas Midgley, Jr., the famous research chemist and inventor who discovered tetraethyl lead as a gasoline antiknock compound, and non-toxic and non-inflammable compounds for refrigerants, had more than 100 inventions to his credit. His talents found application in many and varied fields. In one instance, his attempt to solve a single problem led to the solution of three.

Requested to ascertain how additional power could be had from small electric plants operated by kerosene motors which knocked persistently, he invented an indicator to reveal what happened inside high-speed internal combustion engines. He decided, after observing the indicator, that faster vaporization was required to halt the knocking.

This led to the invention of ethyl gasoline. Then discovering that the use of chlorine and bromine compounds eliminated all objections to that fuel, he invented, during a bromine shortage, a method of extracting bromine from sea water.

In 1937, when Mr. Midgley was awarded the William H. Perkins Medal by the American section of the Society for Chemical Industry, the citation said:

"Tetraethyl adds 40 times as much horsepower annually to American civilization as that which will be supplied by Boulder Dam. Mr. Midgley's more recent discovery of non-toxic refrigerants promises to be equally fundamental in refrigeration and air conditioning."

His use of non-toxic organic fluorides for refrigeration was announced in 1930. His tetraethyl lead played an important part in the development of high-octane gasoline required for modern military planes.

Mr. Midgley's determination in the field of research is shown by the fact that the discovery of tetraethyl lead as a gasoline antiknock compound followed the trial by himself and his colleagues of more than 33,000 different compounds. His dogged determination proved of great value to him when four years before his death last week he was stricken by infantile paralysis and left without use of his legs. He refused to let his handicap interfere with his many activities, as business executive, research expert for the government and president and member of the board of directors of the American Chemical Society.

Only last September, he attended the national meeting of the society in New York and presided over its annual dinner. Those who worked with him said that his confinement to a wheel chair seemed to increase rather than detract from his ardor for research and other activity. His brilliant achievements in science have proved a boon to the world.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Norman, attractive widow, lived chiefly for her son, Dr. Matthew Norman. The income from her decorating shop had seen him through college and would aid in establishing his practice. She was overjoyed when lovely Judith Lambert, daughter of an old friend, dropped in for a visit, en route to Maine for the summer. As Mary awaited dinner with Lynn Mortimer, lawyer, she indulged in a little mental matchmaking about Judith and her son. For years Lynn has been in love with Mary, but his wife, a mental patient, was still living. Mary was stunned when Matthew announced his marriage to Irene Murray, a nurse. Mary soon found her daughter-in-law charming. Irene continued at the hospital until Matthew began practice and then became his office nurse. In the fall, Judith Lambert calls, and dines at Mary's with Irene and Matthew. At dinner, Mary warned Irene she'd spend the rest of her life picking up after Matthew. He teases Judith about being an "old maid," but after her departure, predicts "someone will snatch her up soon, especially when it's discovered she'll inherit her Aunt Ella's wealth." Lynn calls with some books for Mary.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Matthew was looking at the books which Lynn had put down on a table. He said, "She can't possibly read 'em all. Mother, what foul taste! Romance, mystery—?" He read from one jacket aloud—"all the passionate willfulness of an untamed spirit caught in the coils of love." Angel, you should have your head examined. Let me take a couple of the mysteries, will you?" "Of course."

"Irene," said Matthew, "reads aloud. I would have sworn I couldn't stand it. . . . I hate being read to as a rule."

"Since when?" asked his mother. "I used to read to you every night when you were a little boy."

"That's so," recalled Matthew, sincerely astonished. "Well, Irene carries on the old tradition and puts me to sleep."

"How's the apartment?" Lynn asked Irene.

"Lovely. At least, we think so." "It's all right," said Matthew, "lots of leg room and Lord knows I need it. Of course Irene isn't much of a cook, she keeps remembering her dietetics and dishing out a neat mess of junket. But Nellie will soon be in the saddle and we'll be all set."

Lynn turned to Mary who was lying back against a big chair, her eyes closed.

"The papers are about ready for signature," he said. "Will you come to the office Monday, or would you rather we came here?"

Mary answered without opening her eyes. "I'll come down, Lynn. Monday we'll start packing. I've a flock of people coming in."

Matthew remarked, "I'm glad she's selling the Connecticut shack."

I don't suppose I'll have much time to get up even now, and I haven't been there once in the last two years."

His mother said, frowning, "I don't know, it may be a mistake. We're not getting our money out of it, and you and Irene might have enjoyed weekends there."

"Now that we have the car," said Matthew, "we can get about, thanks to you, Lynn. He had dropped the 'uncle' years ago."

He had put Lynn's wedding gift check into a small, smart car. He added, "But there won't be many weekends, worse luck. I want to stick to my job."

"That's right," said Lynn approvingly. "It's amazing how hard it is to find a doctor on Saturday or Sunday. . . . that is, any season except during the dead of winter. They're all off golfing or swimming or something."

He rose. "I've got to go. 'Bye. . . see you Monday, Mary. Ask me to dinner sometime, will you, Irene?" "You can be sure of dinner," said Matthew, "now that Nellie's going to officiate."

"Come to the door with me," suggested Lynn. "I want to consult you."

"Good. Quote, nothing trivial, I hope, unquote," laughed Matthew. "What's wrong? Shoulder bothering you again?"

"Your mother doesn't look well," said Lynn gravely.

"I didn't notice. . . are you sure?" asked Matthew, astonished.

"Naturally, you didn't notice; you see her every day, nowadays, at any rate," said Lynn, "but if she were your patient."

"Okay," responded Matthew and slapped him on the back. "Thanks for the tip. I'll have to walk warily, she's hard to handle and besides," he added, "I'm not her doctor."

When Lynn had gone, Matthew returned to the living room and went to stand by his mother. He asked gently, "What's the matter, old lady?"

He was looking down at her, not as a son regards a parent but as a doctor sees his patient. Lynn was right. There was a white line around her mouth, she looked pinched and drawn.

"Nothing, don't be silly. Why don't you turn on the radio?" "Headache?" he asked.

"A little," she admitted reluctantly.

"Old debbil migraine. Why didn't you tell me? Irene, get her to bed, will you, and I'll send Kate out for some stuff." He produced his new prescription blank and a pen. "It's good, harmless, and very new. Stay in bed tomorrow if you know what's good for you and call Doc Timmons if it gets any worse."

The laughter had gone and the carelessness. He was all physician now, giving orders which he expected would be obeyed.

Mary permitted Irene to take her into the bedroom. She said, allowing the pain to take her, ceasing to fight it, ceasing to deny it, "I'm glad I brought you up to be a doctor, Matthew."

When they reached their apartment Matthew said, "Good Lord, it's early. . . want to go to a midnight show?"

"How about the new mystery?" Irene inquired.

"Good! Anything to eat in the icebox? I'm hungry."

He was always hungry. Later, Irene sat opposite him at the kitchen table and watched him make himself a colossal sandwich. His dressing gown was belted tightly around his slim waist and his hair stood on end. He said, "Vitamins for you, young lady, you don't eat enough."

"Matthew?" "Yes?" "Your mother's overworking. She's having these migraine headaches more frequently."

"Overworking? Darling, are you out of your mind? The shop practically runs itself."

"That's all you know about it." "But she adores it," he insisted, "she worked in Hattie Kimberley's place just for the fun of it, before she had to do it for money. Then she went into partnership and finally bought Hattie out. You know that as well as I do. She's always eaten it up."

"She isn't as young as she was," Matthew calculated. "Forty-six," he said, "prime of life. When I'm forty-six I'll be a mere boy."

What will I be like? thought Irene in sudden, foolish panic. Aloud she said, "Just the same, she needs to slow up."

She loved Mary Norman very much. Theirs was a satisfactory relationship, give and take. Neither was demonstrative, each knew that one could depend on the other. They were slowly growing into a fine, firm friendship.

"I think," said Irene seriously, "that you should persuade her to give it up."

Matthew regarded her as if she had grown horns.

"My dear girl," he retorted, "she can't afford to give it up; besides, what would she do with herself?"

"She's spent so much on us," Irene said thoughtfully, "and we could have managed without Nellie."

"But I need you," said Matthew, his jaw set in the hard lines she had come to know and which, she realized, meant an end of discussion. Nevertheless, she persisted. She was not without spirit. Spirit burned in her, slow to flame but it was there. She could be, as Mary had discovered by now, obstinate. She was almost without humor. But she was good and fine, clear through.

She said, "We could have managed with someone less expensive than Nellie and not such a big apartment."

KNOW YOUR STATE!

The opening of the 1944 hunting season will bring hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvanians out into the State's 15,000,000 acres of forest land. The great demands made by war on the timber resources of the United States emphasize the need for special care against the outbreak of forest fires, when so many men will be taking brief holidays into Pennsylvania woods.

There are several kinds of forest fires, each one of which adds its quota of destruction to timber resources in the State, not yet adequate to supply even our own peace-time needs. A stem fire is one in which a decayed and hollow tree burns upward from below. Lightning sparks from a locomotive, or sometimes a smudge built by a hunter of game or bees give rise to such a fire. These burning trees are dangerous since the hollow trunk acts as a flue and causes a draft which carries a spark for great distances, causing fire to spread to surrounding forest trees. Crown fires occur only when the woods are very dry and there is a high wind. The flames consume the leaf canopy formed by the crowns of the trees, and while conifers are most subject to this type of fire, young hardwoods with either new or dead leaves will also burn freely.

Underground fires are those which smolder beneath the surface of the forest carpet. This type of fire is particularly damaging since it kills the roots of the vegetation and sometimes blights large areas which do not re-seed themselves for many years.

The most common fires in Pennsylvania are of the surface or brush variety. They burn the dead foliage, the weeds, dry grass and moss, and occasionally bushes and small trees. If the debris on the forest floor is not too thick, the larger trees can withstand the generated heat because it is not severe and generally passes quickly.

However, regardless of the type or severity of the forest fire, everybody loses when timber burns.

Commonwealth of Penna. Governor's Office Harrisburg

November 1, 1944

In a statement today Governor Martin said:

"The observance of 'American Education Week' from November 5 to 11, is of especial significance this year, giving opportunity for proper recognition of the benefits to the Nation derived from our vast educational system.

"Vital contributions to the war effort have been made by our educators through the training of thousands of young men in our armed forces for particular phases of duty. Countless other thousands of war workers have been better able to perform their duties on the home front battlefields through special courses of study offered through our schools. Yet, with the added burden, there has been no slackening in the training of our young folk to better prepare them for what is to follow when peace comes.

"Education for New Tasks' is the theme of educators in this coming fourth year of wartime education. More consideration of it invites increased attention and interest to the work of our schools by all citizens of our Commonwealth. I would like to urge people to visit

Even After This Happens, American Women Can't Relax

Even after Killer Hitler himself throws in the sponge, American women must not relax on saving used fats in their kitchens. Because it's the Japs, not the Germans, who still have those territories in the Pacific that used to supply us with one billion pounds a year! Our fat salvage job isn't done until we blast the Nips out.

In the meantime, every drop of used fats is urgently needed to help make the tons of munitions, medicines, synthetic rubber and soaps that are needed for final victory.

So keep saving until V-J Day! Remember, the government gives you 2 free red points for every pound.

is just wasn't enough to give victory. The outcome was forecast by the rabid New Dealers and it did surprise many neutral observers who believed the result would be a landslide one way or the other. This was due to the fact that millions of citizens refused to participate in polls and constituted a bloc of "silent voters." These "silent voters" apparently supported Roosevelt en masse and the President remained "the champion."

Early this morning, Dewey was defeated with loss of New Jersey. His early lead was whittled down hour after hour. It may take time to determine the final result in that State. Meanwhile, Dewey had a small chance of overcoming Roosevelt in Pennsylvania, where the President piled up large majorities in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

At 5 a. m., the President led Dewey in popular balloting:
Roosevelt ..... 16,930,848
Dewey ..... 14,503,118

The President will get a Democratic House and a Democratic Senate but it may not be fully New Deal. It is still entirely possible that a coalition of Southern anti-New Deal Democrats will combine with the Republican minorities to exert a greater influence over the conduct of domestic affairs and even in the international field. It is too early to determine whether Roosevelt's great Electoral College victory has given him a free hand in Washington for the next four years.

At 5.30 a. m., Dewey had won sixteen States, having 144 electoral votes. They were Colorado, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Dakota, New Mexico, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The President had taken all the rest although his margin in Pennsylvania was small.

ship. Work is being done in all parts of the council by the organization committee to give more boys an opportunity to enjoy the work of Scouting.

The highlight of the social activity of the Senior Scouts of the Bucks County Council took place on Saturday evening at the Presbyterian Educational building in Doylestown. The Senior Scout Ball and Bridge of Honor was sponsored by the Doylestown Presbyterian Explorer Post and the Seascout ship "Constitution" of Milford, N. J.

The Ball, which is the formal event of the season for the senior scouts, included a Bridge of Honor at which time Regional Commodore Thomas B. Stockham of Morrisville presented advancement of Ordinary rank of Seascouting to Charles R. Witmer and Jack Meserve of Sellersville.

The refreshments were served with Mrs. George C. Butler of Doylestown in charge for the Explorer Post. A ceremony in honor of the 80 Seascouts who are in the United States military service, and the four Seascouts who have given their lives in the service of their country, was held under the leadership of Commodore F. P. Kemmerer of Sellersville.

Short talks were given by Commissioner William Burgess, Jr., of Morrisville, and Scout Executive Raymond W. Hoxworth. The Jolly Rogers Orchestra of Doylestown furnished the music.

When Junior Is Host!

What to serve at the children's party, in order to please precocious little guests and yet send them home without appetites ruined for the family dinner.

A successful children's party is by no means the easiest thing to plan. Games that will please both boys and girls, of various ages, must be thought of in advance. Lunch must be served early enough so it will not spoil those evening meals at home. She's a fortunate mother who can conduct such a party without a hitch. Too little food causes comment. Too much food causes trouble. The wrong kind of food will go uncatenated. What to do? That's the question!

May I suggest a little menu that I am sure you will find pleasing:

A nice cool glass of lemonade; a couple of attractive little sandwiches—jelly, peanut butter, strawberry preserves, or something else that children like; and for dessert,

Baby Bounty

A few days ago, when I was walking in the country, I came across a log building set high upon a hill. I took the footpath up the ridge and found a churchyard all about me. There were markers, centuries old. At first I traced the records idly.

Here lay a famous Indian fighter and his family—there the village doctor—a Revolutionary soldier—a pastor—and a farmer. Then I read, "Elizabeth Rebecca, aged three months . . . Sarah Evelyn, just one year . . . Deborah Jane, with six months." I looked more closely then, and saw on every hand these small white markers—memorials to tiny children who lived so briefly, such a long, long time ago.

And I thought of all the miracles of modern science, perhaps the greatest is our skill in baby care. For we understand now, how to rear our children. Epidemics are controlled. Sanitation is a science. And infant feeding—well, we've surely gone a long way from the old-time methods there!

Now doctors know that the milk-and-gruel diet of the past, did not contain enough, of the right kinds of foods, to nourish growing babies. You see—scientists have discovered that babies must have certain nutrients to grow on. Nature equips them with a good supply at first. But, a few months of lusty living, and these nutrients are all used up. So they must be replenished like babies are to have the best chance to be well and strong.

Rich sources of many nutrients are fruits, vegetables, cereals, and meats. But, of course, a tiny baby's tender tummy could not handle these in the same form as adults do. Then scientists discovered that if these foods were cooked carefully and finely strained, so all the coarseness and stringy fibers were removed, tiny babies could eat them easily. Moreover, on such a diet, tiny babies thrived!

But the trick lay in the cooking. For many of these nutrients proved will-o-the-wisp in a cooking pan. But scientists are not easily deterred. Again they busied themselves in the laboratory working out new methods of cooking under pressure, so that a maximum of baby-body-building elements would stay in foods where they belonged. From their discoveries stemmed the great strained food industry for infants.

Today prepared baby foods are always available. They are consistently high in quality. They are reliably nutritious. And, best boon of all to busy mothers, they are ready to heat and serve.

Scientific progress in strained baby foods did not begin and end with cooking methods either. Agronomists searched for the most productive growing country in the U.S.A. They laid out spacious gardens, planting new and improved strains and seedlings. Each year, now, these precious crops are cultivated with great care. At the peak of ripeness the harvesting begins. Then the tender crop is rushed to nearby factories where, within a matter of minutes, the cleaning, cutting, and a liberal serving of rennet-custard, either plain, or topped with candies, fruits or creams that fit the particular holiday or season. For a birthday party, the number of years may be formed as a topping. For

Small cans, sized to infant servings, are used to pack these products in. And, as an extra guarantee of care and caution, enamel linings are provided in each can. Four different kinds of enamel linings are employed—each designed to keep color, flavor, and food value of certain foods at perfect pitch. Attention like this, to every detail in the preparation, is one reason why our strained-foods-fed babies have the world's best chance to live and grow.

Here's a recipe for your rennet-custard dish. Try it out on the children at home and I know they will vote for it to be served at the next party:

Orange Cream Rennet-Custard
1 package orange rennet powder
1 cup milk, not canned
1 cup cream (light)

Set out 4 or 5 individual dessert glasses. Warm milk and cream slowly, stirring constantly. Test a drop on inside of wrist frequently. When comfortably warm (110 degrees F.) not hot, remove at once from heat. Stir rennet powder into mixture briskly until dissolved—not over one minute. Pour at once, while still liquid, into individual dessert glasses. Let stand at room temperature until set—about 10 minutes. Chill.

RAISINS PROVIDE MUCH OF NUTRITIVE VALUE FOR MEALS

By Mary Jacoby Fleetham
(Home Economics Representative)
Raisins are rising in favor for fall desserts, salads, sauces and stuffings, as plentiful supplies of both Thompson seedless and seeded Muscates move to market. The ample supply of raisins is also good news to homemakers who bake their own holiday fruit cakes.

Several reasons for making good use of the abundant raisin crop this season: Raisins are a good source of iron and contain fair amounts of other minerals and the B vitamins. Because they are high in natural fruit sugars, less sugar is often needed when raisins are used. They make a handy "sweet snack" for packed lunches.

Different types of raisins can be used almost interchangeably, say the home economists, but seedless raisins are generally preferred for fruit cups and salads. The sweeter, stickier, seeded raisins are most often used in cereals and in baking. Heat and moisture of cooking will generally plump raisins sufficiently. If especially tender, juicy ones are desired for fruit cup or salad, rinse in hot water.

To plump seedless raisins which have become dry and hard on the shelf, rinse in boiling hot water, drain, spread out in a shallow pan, and then place in a moderately hot (375 degrees F.) oven for 10 to 15 minutes—or until "plumped." Steaming in a colander or strainer in a covered saucepan is another good plumping method. Since raisins will not keep well with the added moisture, plump only as many as can be used immediately. Chopped raisins are best for most batter recipes because they spread the flavor better and have less tendency to sink to the bottom. Flouring with a portion of the dry ingredients before adding to the batter also helps to keep either chopped or whole raisins from sinking. The easiest way to chop raisins is to snip with scissors dipped in hot water.

CENTREVILLE — (INS) — An overly enthusiastic Hallowe'en celebration resulted in the shooting of John P. Izett, 16. He was accidentally injured by another

CARTS ICE CREAM PLANT ALONG WITH FIFTH ARMY

By International News Service
WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, Italy,
Nov. 8 — (INS) — Staff Sgt. Tom Tasa, of South Minneapolis, Minn., mess sergeant in a 34th Infantry Division regiment, is one of the most popular men on the entire Fifth Army front in Italy. He makes it possible for his infantrymen to have ice cream, even while they are in the front lines.

In a liberated Italian town, Sgt.
Tasa found an abandoned ice cream factory. With a hastily improvised crew he went into action. Within a few hours his men on the line had their first ice cream in a long, long time.

"The men were terribly hot, tired and thirsty," said Tasa. "I was determined to keep making it whenever possible."

As the Germans fell back and our infantry troops advanced, transportation became a problem.
Russell Van Skike, of Colorado Springs, Col., a Red Cross man, learned of the problems and furnished a vehicle.

The inside men of the ice cream works are Corporal Matty Cardaser of Clifside, N. J., who acts as mixer, and his assistant, Pfc. Ellis Watkins, of Red Oak, Oklahoma.

They have a valuable helpmate in Pina, a little Italian girl, who attached herself to the ice cream establishment at its inception.

The crew of three, when under full operation, produces an average of one gallon of ice cream every eight minutes.

"Now and then," said Cardaser, "we run out of vanilla, but so far I've been able to get enough from Italian civilians."

"Ice is another problem," Watkins explained, "but when we run out, we shut down the ice cream department for a night, and make our own."

Corp. Norman Wolgast, of 301
East Center street, Rochester,

Minn., an electrician, is the utility man and keeps the machinery running smoothly.

"I had to cut down the voltage system to meet the output of my generator, but I manage to keep things humming 24 hours a day," Wolgast said.

SLIP COVERS WHICH ARE STAINED CAN BE GIVEN NEW LOOK

By Mary Jacoby Fleetham
(Home Economics Representative)
Summer's open windows were probably hard on your slip covers.
But you'll find it's not hard to give time-stained slip covers a bright new look and a satiny, dirt-resisting finish, if you'll follow expert laundry technique.

First shake and brush covers to remove surface dirt. If there are any specially soiled parts, rub with thick soap-suds. Dissolve bluing flakes with your regular soap when you wash. This technique insures colors that look bright and gleam, and also avoids the need for a separate bluing job. Rinse twice, using lukewarm water.

Slip covers should be lightly starched. To achieve a satiny finish that helps to shed dust and makes the slip covers stay clean longer, dissolve a quarter of a cake of a specially prepared wax-like product in each quart of starch.

This expert technique makes the slip covers easier to iron, too, because the iron doesn't stick. For the medium starch usually needed for slip covers, make basic starch according to directions on package, using 4 tablespoons of starch to 1 quart of water. For medium starch, use one to two parts of lukewarm water to one quart of this basic starch.

Always divide starch mixture so that all pieces get equal stiffening.
Squeeze and press starch through fabric. If possible hang slip covers on parallel lines to hasten drying and prevent sagging. Pull gently along piping and adjust pleats. Dry in shade. Iron corded seams first.
Then double the material away from corded seams and iron seams lengthwise. Next iron folds. Iron on wrong side first and finish on right side.

you can't buy many things you want

You can't buy many things you want—radios, refrigerators, washing machines, things like that—because their manufacturers are making other things for war. And that's the reason why many of you—more than 30,000 in Pennsylvania alone—are waiting for home telephone service.

The manufacturers of telephone equipment are still making almost nothing for civilian use. Instead, they're making other things—special communication and secret electronic devices—for General
Eisenhower and General MacArthur and Admiral Nimitz and GI Joe.

You wouldn't want it any other way.

When Germany and Japan are beaten—both of them—there'll be a different story. But it won't be a short story. The manufacturers must first produce the central office equipment, the switchboards, the telephone instruments, and the 101 other items we need. Then we have the mighty job of installation . . . of construction . . .
of laying miles of cable under city streets and along country roads . . . of hooking everything into the living mechanism that is the telephone system.

You can count on this, though:
We'll move heaven and earth to get that job done,
for we don't like to keep anyone waiting for telephone service.

WHAT MAKES A NATION GREAT?

NOT its land, not its forests, not its money. Only people make a nation great.

The good earth, the minerals, the oil, the trees—yes, they help a nation but only as they are developed and used by MEN. America is richly blessed with these gifts of nature.

Science and technology make possible synthetic substitutes for many natural resources. The future is bright with hope because men and women can perform such miracles.

All victories in war and peace are won by people. They mine the ore.

They make the steel. They fashion the weapons. They fight the battles. They do business. They carry science forward. They make or break the peace.

We can build a brighter future for America only as we build people. That is why America believes in education.

REPORT RESPONSE TO MILKWEED DRIVE

Farm Agency Gets Requests For 198,350 Mesh Bushel Bags

OTHER FARM NEWS

By Suzanne Flick
(I. N. S. Farm Editor)
HAIRSBURG, Nov. 8 — The Agricultural Adjustment Agency has reported a greater response to the milkweed drive than anticipated and said requests for 198,350 mesh bushel bags had been received.

The goal was 80,000 bushels, John A. Smith, Secretary, stated, but a total collection of 200,000 bushels has been estimated for the season's "Save a Life" campaign. Two bushel bags of milkweed floss will make one life belt, he explained.

"The phenomenal success of this drive is attributed to the enthusiasm of school superintendents, teachers and pupils, a potential source of war manpower heretofore untapped and to a great extent unqualified because of age restrictions in war plants," Smith declared. "The remarkable success of the drive is a tribute to Pennsylvania youths and the state school organization."

Students were warned against storing the pods before they had been thoroughly dried.

The recent removal of farm machinery and utensils from the rationed category came as good news to farmers. The directive included all implements except corn pickers and tractors.

Pressure cookers were made available without certificates to farm women.

Pennsylvania State College agricultural specialists have advised poultry raisers to choose only sound pullets for housing as future layers. Grading according to development and maturity was also suggested as a means of eliminating overcrowding and for obtaining more eggs.

The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service has announced the farm dollar value dropped one point during the year ending September 15, while service and supply costs increased six points.

Based on the 1909-1914 average of 100, the purchasing power declined four cents from $1.25, it was reported.

Although dairy products advanced two points from August 15 to September 15 and eggs gained seven points, a general falling off of all-crop profits was indicated. Buckwheat dropped 16 cents per bushel, potatoes 10 cents, and apples five cents. Beef cattle suffered a 50 cent loss per hundred pounds.

Fall plowing and seeding of winter grains was well underway with many farmers reported working late into the night to beat frosts.

Wheat which has already sprouted "is greening nicely and has a good start to carry over winter," the State Agriculture Department stated.

Buckwheat was being cut with rather poor yields and the cutting and husking of the State's fair corn crop near completion. Potato digging was said to be underway throughout the Commonwealth, with school students shouldering a large burden of the harvest.

Housewives with adequate storage space were urged to purchase large potato supplies while "digging time" prices are low during October.

months in hospitals, arrived at the camp.

Another letter written on August 6 gave Peters' relatives the information that Lt. Keck also had arrived at the camp.

Colliding head-on with an automobile as he was riding his bicycle in Quakertown, Sunday, Luther L. Cressman, for many years a resident of that borough, died almost instantly of a fractured skull.

Cressman, who was 66 years of age was a former cigarmaker.

According to Officers Reiter and Harr, the car was operated by Edwin R. Dobrowolski, Quakertown, R. D. 2, who was held under bail for a Coroner's inquest.

Police have not been able to determine whether Cressman had a light on his bicycle.

Ensign John Harvey Shepley, pilot of a large dive bomber in the Pacific area, had a narrow escape aboard a carrier while heading for the battle line recently as his plane was sinking in the ocean.

The young pilot, a son of the Rev. and Mrs. James R. Shepley, of Sellersville, now is stationed near Pearl Harbor.

James Strehig sent a delayed story from a carrier at sea, describing three accidents as the bombers were being launched from catapults.

Five minutes was all it took to spoil the otherwise perfect record of the crew of pilots and men taking up the dive bombers, and in one of these crews was Ensign Shepley.

An account given by a west coast newspaper indicated that five minutes before Pilot Shepley's bomber and others crashed a buddy of his whom he had taken to Sellersville in one of his last visits home before being based on the West Coast was lost when his bomber sank while being launched from a catapult, along with the gunner.

However, the three other crews of dive bombers were rescued by escorting destroyers. Valuable equipment also was saved.

Ensign Shepley and his gunner, John E. Ramsdell, Corning, N. Y., crawled out safely when their plane failed to gain altitude and struck the ocean.

span was ordered regardless of cost. To achieve visibility necessary for destruction of the bridge it was necessary to descend below clouds of 6500 feet, an altitude usually considered extremely hazardous for four-engine bombers. From this height the target was reduced to a heap of smoking rubble. It was the first low-level bombing ever performed by four-engine bombers from England.

Earlier the group had been officially commended by General Doolittle for combat achievement on its first mission, an attack on Berlin and the longest initial assault ever flown in the European theater. The attack was one of the heaviest daylight bombings of the German capital on record.

During its first 100 missions,

"overcoming adverse weather conditions and fierce enemy fighter and anti-aircraft opposition," the group attacked 41 targets in Germany and 59 targets in enemy-occupied Europe. Forty-seven hundred 4700 tons of bombs were dropped on vital enemy installations.

SPEED PRISONER MAIL

tured prisoners of war in Germany will receive their first mail from home two or three months earlier than previously because of new plans for forwarding arranged by the Provost Marshal General's office, it was announced by the New York Chapter, American Red Cross. Under the new plan, the postoffice will accept mail for a prisoner of war immediately after official information that he has been captured by Germany is received. Previously, relatives in this country were compelled to wait until they received his permanent camp address.

SURPRISE!

NEW YORK — (INS) — If your cigar store doesn't have your favorite brand of cigarettes you can always find them in Tombs prison. Timothy Moriarty indulged in strong language when the woman proprietor of a store couldn't give him the brand he wanted. He was sent to the Tombs overnight. Arriving in court the next morning, he waved a pack of his favorite cigarettes and told the judge he could get all he wanted in prison.

SERGEANT PAT OF RADIO PATROL

By EDDIE SULLIVAN and CHARLIE SCHMIDT

He's training pilots for Uncle Sam

Lieutenant Donald H. Day, P.E. employee, now instructing fliers.

Donald H. Day, in the days before Pearl Harbor, was an electrical helper down at P.E.'s Conowingo Hydro Station. With the call to arms, Don went to Camp Meade, Maryland, then to Fort Bragg, N. C., where he was promoted to Corporal.

Next came a transfer to Maxwell Field, Alabama, as an air cadet. In May, 1943, Don became a bomber pilot and since then has been twin-engine bomber pilot instructor charged with giving the final phase of training to boys seeking their wings.

From electrical helper to bomber pilot instructor—such is the change wrought by war for America's youth.

All America has thrilled to the outstanding speed with which our shipyards have been turning out fighting craft. Talented designers, efficient production men, skilled workmen... all have played a part in this record-breaking performance. One more very important part is that of electricity. More electricity is being used today for shipbuilding operations than ever before, and in each case it results in saving time and labor.

Shipbuilding is just one of the scores of wartime industries in this five-county area whose demand for electric power, even at record new peaks, has been met on time despite the shortage of essential materials and more than 1080 of our trained employees away in the armed forces.

DECISIVE VERDICT

Given A Democratic House and a Democratic Senate

By William K. Hutchinson (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(INS)—The American people today had drafted President Roosevelt for a fourth term, while giving him a Democratic Congress to carry out his program for speedy victory and world peace.

The new Vice-President will be Senator Harry S. Truman, of Missouri.

The President was overwhelmingly re-elected, carrying at least thirty-two States with 387 Electoral votes.

It was a decisive verdict, with around 50,000,000 voters participating.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, defeated Republican nominee, was ahead in only sixteen States early today with 44 Electoral votes. Dewey, however, ran a great race, with final tabulations probably showing he was supported by about 23,000,000 voters to Roosevelt's 27,000,000.

Dewey conceded his defeat graciously in a little speech to newsmen at his Hotel Roosevelt headquarters at 3.14 a. m., EWT, which was broadcast. The President heard the broadcast and telephoned his thanks to the Governor.

The Vice-President-elect, from Kansas City, promptly issued a statement, declaring: "It was a grand statement by Governor Dewey and it shows American sportsmanship. It is up to the people to make good the Dewey statement by winning both the war and the peace."

The outcome of the election showed the world that the American people are behind Mr. Roosevelt in his conduct of the war and in his plans to disarm both Germany and Japan for peace in the future. It was an overwhelming decision in the Electoral College, although Dewey ran strongly in all sections of the country, carried the farm belt and many rural-small town sections of the East. The President won through by sweeping the great cities.

There was little doubt but that the CIO's Political Action Committee, headed by Sidney Hillman, had a lot to do with the verdict.

It was in the great cities that Roosevelt rolled up his margin of victory. He carried New York State by rolling up 763,000 plurality in New York City, while Dewey's upstate lead was slashed by defections in large industrial cities. In State after State, he carried the big cities and the Republican pluralities in small cities, towns and farm areas.

CLEANED BY SCRIBES

Four former Doylestown High School students, all of whom were forced down while in combat over Germany or enemy occupied Europe, are being held prisoners of war in a German camp, believed to be north of Berlin and not far from the Baltic Sea.

All commissioned officers and members of the Air Force, they are Lieutenants Robert B. Conroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Conroy, and James Barlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Barlow, of this place; Wilbur Keck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll B. Keck, Warrington, and George F. Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Peters, Castle Valley.

One of the most recent to write home was Peters, who was forced down on March 8, 1944, and taken prisoner. A bombardier of a B-17 Flying Fortress, Peters arrived overseas in November, 1943, and it is believed he was forced down during his 17th mission last March.

Peters is believed to have been the first of the Doylestown soldiers to have arrived in the camp. In a letter written last June he informed relatives Lt. Barlow was at the camp, and in a later communication he said Lt. Conroy, pilot of a Thunderbolt fighter, after several

Mrs. Jane Moyer Meredith, widow of the late Charles M. Meredith, former publisher of the Quakertown Free Press, passed away Monday morning at the Pennsylvania hospital in Philadelphia.

Well known in newspaper circles, Mrs. Meredith took an active part in the publishing of her husband's newspaper and assisted him also with the Perkasio Central News, which he owned prior to his purchase of the Quakertown Free Press in 1917.

The deceased is survived by two sons, Charles M. Meredith, Jr., publisher of the Quakertown Free Press since his father's death, and the Bangor Daily News; and Dr. John M. Meredith, neurosurgeon, of Richmond, Virginia; also one grandson, Charles Meredith. The following sisters and brothers survive her: Mrs. Hannah Gulden, of Perkasio; Mrs. Sadie Downes, of Toronto, Canada; Mrs. Robert Barnes, of Cumberland, Md.; Miss Miriam Moyer, of Washington, D. C.; Samuel Moyer, of Oakland, Calif.; and Clinton Moyer, of Doylestown. Her elder brother, Squire Theodore Moyer, preceded her in death this past Summer.

As a member of the Philadelphia Music Club and the First Reformed church choir, of Quakertown, Mrs. Meredith continued with her work until she entered the hospital.

The deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. Moyer, who at one time had a chain of five creameries, shipping most of his butter, cheese and other products from Perkasio. Eventually Mr. Moyer moved to Perkasio with his family and built the brick home for his family at Sixth and Chestnut streets.

Funeral services will be held from her late home at Sixth and Chestnut streets, Friday, November 10, at two o'clock. Rev. Paul T. Stoudt, pastor of the First Reformed and Evangelical church at Quakertown, will officiate. The Moyer Funeral Home, of Perkasio, is making the arrangements.

PENNSYLVANIA RESULT MAY DEPEND ON SOLDIERS' BALLOTS

Harrisburg—President Roosevelt held a margin of more than 60,000 in Pennsylvania today over Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and there were indications the outcome would not be final until election boards in 67 counties opened an estimated 230,000 military ballots November 22.

Expected to be another victim of the New Deal victory was U. S. Sen. James J. Davis, of Pittsburgh. The 71-year-old lawmaker trailed his Democratic opponent, Cong. Francis J. Myers, of Philadelphia, by more than 66,000 votes in 6820 precincts.

Although 25 seats—half the membership—were at stake in the Senate, there were few chances the Democrats would upset the GOP domination. To gain control, Democrats would have to capture 19 of the Senatorial contests while the Republicans could retain power by winning only eight seats.

Roosevelt Overwhelmingly Re-elected

New York—President Roosevelt was overwhelmingly re-elected today to another term in the White House in a smashing victory over Governor Thomas E. Dewey that was mounting hourly and may even surpass his 1940 defeat of Wendell Willkie. The President either carried or led in thirty-six States, with an Electoral vote of 439.

Governor Dewey lagged far behind, carrying or leading in only twelve States, having 101 Electoral votes. Dewey may even lose three more States in which he led at 9.30 a. m. EWT. These were Indiana, where his lead was 48,000, in Ohio where he was ahead by 27,000 and in Wisconsin, where he was out in front by 16,000.

The President may well win thirty-nine States having 480 Electoral votes, leaving Dewey with nine States with fifty-one Electoral votes. If he does, it will surpass his victory over Willkie, who carried ten States with 82 Electoral votes, and even his slaughter of former President Hoover, who carried but 6 States with fifty-nine Electoral votes in 1932.

EDDINGTON, Nov. 8.—The 1210 garments displayed by Cornwells Branch, Needlework Guild of America yesterday afternoon in the lecture room of Eddington Presbyterian Church topped the number gathered last year by 142.

The annual exhibition was attended by a goodly number, with Mrs. Edward Vansant, Hulmeville, president of the organization, in the chair.

Sister Dora, of the Rivercrest Sanatorium, near Collegeville, was the speaker of the afternoon. She told of the work carried out at the sanatorium, that of prevention of tuberculosis. Sister Dora, who was accompanied to Eddington by one of the little girls from the sanatorium, told how children, aged four to 14, are taken from homes where one or both of the parents have tuberculosis, and cared for at the institution. There their health is built up so they can resist the disease. The girls and boys are kept at the sanatorium until homes are provided for them. The little girl, aged 4½ years, sang for the group.

The number of directors in the organization totals 18 at present.

Reports of work of the Junior Branch and of the White Cross were made by Mrs. Roberts, of Croydon. Miss Isabelle Jones reported on activity of the Labrador Branch.

The minutes were read by Mrs. C. Burnley White in the absence of her mother, Mrs. J. W. Simons, secretary of the association. Mrs. Henry Miehle gave report of the condition of the treasury.

Two vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Phillip Mack, her accompanist being Mrs. Otto Grupp. A moment of silent prayer was observed for the women and men in the service.

Members of the guild will pack the garments this afternoon. Local needs will be cared for first, and the remainder distributed to various institutions.

As just wasn't enough to give Dewey victory. The outcome was forecast by the rabid New Dealers and it did surprise many neutral observers who believed the result would be a landslide one way or the other. This was due to the fact that millions of citizens refused to participate in polls and constituted a bloc of "silent voters." These "silent voters" apparently supported Roosevelt en masse and the president remained "the champion."

Early this morning, Dewey was seated with loss of New Jersey. His early lead was whittled down hour after hour. It may take the time to determine whether Dewey in that State. Meanwhile, Dewey had a small chance of over-coming Roosevelt in Pennsylvania. The President piled up large majorities in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

At 5 a. m., the President led Dewey in popular balloting:
Roosevelt ..... 16,930,848
Dewey ..... 14,503,118

The President will get a Democratic House and a Democratic Senate but it may not be fully New Deal. It is still entirely possible that a coalition of Southern anti-New Deal Democrats will combine with the Republican minorities to exert a greater influence over the conduct of domestic affairs and even in the international field. It is too early to determine whether Roosevelt's great Electoral College victory has given him a free hand in Washington for the next four years.

At 5.30 a. m., Dewey had won sixteen States, having 144 electoral votes. They were Colorado, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Dakota, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The President had taken all the States although his margin in Pennsylvania was small.

The highlight of the social activity of the Senior Scouts of the Bucks County Council took place on Saturday evening at the Presbyterian Educational building in Doylestown. The Senior Scout Ball and Bridge of Honor was sponsored by the Doylestown Presbyterian Explorer Post and the Seascout ship "Constitution" of Milford, N. J.

The Ball, which is the formal event of the season for the senior scouts, included a Bridge of Honor at which time Regional Commodore Thomas B. Stockham of Morrisville presented advancement of Ordinary rank of Seascouting to Charles R. Witmer and Jack Meserve of Sellersville.

The refreshments were served with Mrs. George C. Butler of Doylestown in charge for the Explorer Post. A ceremony in honor of the 80 Seascouts who are in the United States military service, and the four Seascouts who have given their lives in the service of their country, was held under the leadership of Commodore F. Short talks were given by Commissioner William Burgess, Jr., of Morrisville, and Scout Executive Raymond W. Hoxworth. The Jolly Rogers Orchestra of Doylestown furnished the music.

A successful children's party is by no means the easiest thing to plan. Games that will please both boys and girls, of various ages, must be thought of in advance. Lunch must be served early enough so it will not spoil those evening meals at home. She's a fortunate mother who can conduct such a party without a hitch. Too little food causes comment. ## Baby Bounty

A few days ago, when I was walking in the country, I came across an old log building set high upon a hill. I took the footpath up the edge and found a churchyard all about me. There were markers, centuries old. At first I traced the records idly.

Here lay a famous Indian fighter and his family—there the village doctor—a Revolutionary soldier—a pastor—and a farmer. Then I read, "Elizabeth Rebecca, aged three months . . . Sarah Evelyn, just one year . . . Deborah Jane, with six months." I looked more closely then, and saw on every hand these small white markers—memorials to tiny children who lived so briefly, such a long, long time ago.

And I thought of all the miracles of modern science, perhaps the greatest is our skill in baby care. For we understand now, how to rear our children. Epidemics are controlled. Sanitation is a science. And infant feeding—well, we've surely gone a long way from the old-time methods there!

Now doctors know that the milk-and-gruel diet of the past, did not contain enough, of the right kinds of foods, to nourish growing babies. You see—scientists have discovered that babies must have certain nutrients to grow on. Nature equips them with a good supply at first. But, a few months of lusty living, and these nutrients are all used up. So they must be replenished if babies are to have the best chance to be well and strong.

Rich sources of many nutrients are fruits, vegetables, cereals, and meats. But, of course, a tiny baby's tender tummy could not handle these in the same form as adults do. Then scientists discovered that if these foods were cooked carefully and finely strained, so all the coarseness and stringy fibers were removed, tiny babies could eat them easily. Moreover, on such a diet, tiny babies thrived!

But the trick lay in the cooking. For many of these nutrients proved will-o-the-wisp in a cooking pan. But scientists are not easily deterred. Again they busied themselves in the laboratory working out new methods of cooking under pressure, so that a maximum of baby-body-building elements would stay in foods where they belonged. From their discoveries stemmed the great strained food industry for infants. Today prepared baby foods are always available. They are consistently high in quality. They are reliably nutritious. And, best boon of all to busy mothers, they are ready to heat and serve.

Scientific progress in strained baby foods did not begin and end with cooking methods either. Agronomists searched for the most productive growing country in the U.S.A. They laid out spacious gardens, planting new and improved strains and seedlings. Each year, now, these precious crops are cultivated with great care. At the peak of ripeness the harvesting begins. Then the tender crop is rushed to nearby factories where, within a matter of minutes, the cleaning, cutting, and cooking has begun.

Small cans, sized to infant servings, are used to pack these products in. And, as an extra guarantee of care and caution, enamel linings are provided in each can. Four different kinds of enamel linings are employed—each designed to keep color, flavor, and food value of certain foods at perfect pitch. Attention like this, to every detail in the preparation, is one reason why our strained-foods-fed babies have the world's best chance to live and grow.

Pour at once, while still liquid, into individual dessert glasses. Let stand at room temperature until set—about 10 minutes. Chill.

RAISINS PROVIDE MUCH OF NUTRATIVE VALUE FOR MEALS

By Mary Jacoby Fleetham
(Home Economics Representative)

Raisins are rising in favor for all desserts, salads, sauces and stuffings, as plentiful supplies of both Thompson seedless and seeded Muscats move to market. The ample supply of raisins is also good news to homemakers who bake their own holiday fruit cakes.

Several reasons for making good use of the abundant raisin crop this season: Raisins are a good source of iron and contain fair amounts of other minerals and the B vitamins. Because they are high in natural fruit sugars, less sugar is often needed when raisins are used. They make a handy "sweet snack" for packed lunches.

Different types of raisins can be used almost interchangeably, say the home economists, but seedless raisins are generally preferred for fruit cups and salads. The sweeter, stickier, seeded raisins are most often used in cereals and in baking. Heat and moisture of cooking will generally plump raisins sufficiently. If especially tender, juicy ones are desired for fruit cup or salad, rinse in hot water.

To plump seedless raisins which have become dry and hard on the shelf, rinse in boiling hot water, drain, spread out in a shallow pan, and then place in a moderately hot (375 degrees F.) oven for 10 to 15 minutes—or until "puffed." Steam- ing in a colander or strainer in a covered saucepan is another good plumping method. Since raisins will not keep well with the added moisture, plump only as many as can be used immediately. Chopped raisins are best for most batter recipes because they spread the flavor better and have less tendency to sink to the bottom. Flouring with a portion of the dry ingredients before adding to the batter also helps to keep either chopped or whole raisins from sinking. The easiest way to chop raisins is to snip with scissors dipped in hot water.

CENTREVILLE (INS)—An ing in a colander or strainer in a celebration resulted in the shoot- ing of John P. Izett, 16. He was accidentally injured by another moisture, plump only as many as

WHAT MAKES A NATION GREAT?

NOT its land, not its forests, not its money. Only people make a nation great.

The good earth, the minerals, the oil, the trees—yes, they help a nation but only as they are developed and used by MEN. America is richly blessed with these gifts of nature.

Science and technology make possible synthetic substitutes for many natural resources. The future is bright with hope because men and women can perform such miracles.

All victories in war and peace are won by people. They mine the ore.

They make the steel. They fashion the weapons. They fight the battles. They do business. They carry science forward. They make or break the peace.

We can build a brighter future for America only as we build people. That is why America believes in education.

Today's Quiet Moment

by The Rev. W. E. Preston Haas
Pastor
Bristol Methodist Church

Send Thy peace into our hearts, O Lord, at this evening hour, that we may be contented with Thy mercies of this day, and confident of Thy protection for this night. And now, having forgiven others, even as Thou hast forgiven us, may we have a pure comfort and a watchful rest within the shelter of our home. Through Jesus Christ, our Saviour. Amen.

Do functional periodic pains upset you? Try the preparation that's specially compounded for functional distress—the new Chi-Ches-Ters Pills. They've worked wonders for thousands of women. They should help you. For they do more than merely deaden pain. One of their ingredients tends to aid in relaxing the cramping and tension that causes distress. The added iron factor they contain is intended to help build up your blood, too. Ask your druggist today for a box of the new Chi-Ches-Ters Pills. Then try them, as directed, for next month's "difficult days".

HARRISBURG, Nov. 8 — The Agricultural Adjustment Agency has reported a greater response to the milkweed drive than anticipated and said requests for 198,350 mesh bushel bags had been received.

The goal was 80,000 bushels, John A. Smith, Secretary, stated, but a total collection of 200,000 bushels has been estimated for the season's "Save a Life" campaign. Two bushel bags of milkweed floss will make one life belt, he explained.

"The phenomenal success of this drive is attributed to the enthusiasm of school superintendents, teachers and pupils, a potential source of war manpower heretofore untapped and to a great extent unqualified because of age restrictions in war plants," Smith declared. "The remarkable success of the drive is a tribute to Pennsylvania youths and the state school organization."

Students were warned against storing the pods before they have been thoroughly dried.

The recent removal of farm machinery and utensils from the rationed category came as good news to farmers. The directive included all implements except corn pickers and tractors.

Pressure cookers were made available without certificates to farm women.

Pennsylvania State College agricultural specialists have advised poultry raisers to choose only young pullets for housing as future layers. Grading according to development and maturity was also suggested as a means of eliminating overcrowding and for obtaining more eggs.

The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service has announced the farm dollar value dropped one point during the year ending September 15, while service and supply costs increased six points.

Based on the 1909-1914 average of 100, the purchasing power declined four cents from $1.25, it was reported.

Although dairy products advanced two points from August 15 to September 15 and eggs gained seven points, a general falling off of all-crop profits was indicated. Buckwheat dropped 16 cents per bushel, potatoes 10 cents, and apples five cents. Beef cattle suffered a 50 cent loss per hundred pounds.

Fall plowing and seeding of winter grains was well underway with many farmers reported working late into the night to beat frosts.

Wheat which has already sprouted "is greening nicely and has a good start to carry over winter," the State Agriculture Department stated.

Buckwheat was being cut with rather poor yields and the cutting and husking of the State's fair corn crop near completion. Potato digging was said to be underway throughout the Commonwealth, with school students shouldering a large burden of the harvest.

Housewives with adequate storage space were urged to purchase large potato supplies while "digging time" prices are low during October.

Months in hospitals, arrived at the camp.

Another letter written on August 6 gave Peters' relatives the information that Lt. Keck also had arrived at the camp.

Colliding head-on with an automobile as he was riding his bicycle in Quakertown, Sunday, Luther L. Cressman, for many years a resident of that borough, died almost instantly of a fractured skull.

Cressman, who was 66 years of age was a former cigarmaker.

According to Officers Reiter and Harr, the car was operated by Edwin R. Dobrowolski, Quakertown, R. D. 2, who was held under bail for a Coroner's inquest.

Police have not been able to determine whether Cressman had a light on his bicycle.

Ensign John Harvey Shepley, pilot of a large dive bomber in the Pacific area, had a narrow escape aboard a carrier while heading for the battle line recently as his plane was sinking in the ocean.

The young pilot, a son of the Rev. and Mrs. James R. Shepley, of Sellersville, now is stationed near Pearl Harbor.

James Strehg sent a delayed story from a carrier at sea, describing three accidents as the bombers were being launched from catapults.

Five minutes was all it took to spoil the otherwise perfect record of the crew of pilots and men taking up the dive bombers, and in one of these crews was Ensign Shepley. An account given by a west coast newspaper indicated that five minutes before Pilot Shepley's bomber and others crashed a buddy of his whom he had taken to Sellersville in one of his last visits home before being based on the West Coast was lost when his bomber sank while being launched from a catapult, along with the gunner.

However, the three other crews of dive bombers were rescued by escorting destroyers. Valuable equipment also was saved.

Ensign Shepley and his gunner, John E. Ramsdell, Corning, N. Y., crawled out safely when their plane failed to gain altitude and struck the ocean.

span was ordered regardless of cost. To achieve visibility necessary for destruction of the bridge it was necessary to descend below clouds of 6500 feet, an altitude usually considered extremely hazardous for four-engine bombers. From this height the target was reduced to a heap of smoking rubble. It was the first low-level bombing ever performed by four-engine bombers from England.

Earlier the group had been officially commended by General Doolittle for combat achievement on its first mission, an attack on Berlin and the longest initial assault ever flown in the European theater. The attack was one of the heaviest daylight bombings of the German capital on record.

During its first 100 missions,

overcoming adverse weather conditions and fierce enemy fighter and anti-aircraft opposition, the group attacked 41 targets in Germany and 59 targets in enemy-occupied Europe. Forty-seven hundred (4700) tons of bombs were dropped on vital enemy installations.

SPEED PRISONER MAIL

tured prisoners of war in Germany will receive their first mail from home two or three months earlier than previously because of new plans for forwarding arranged by the Provost Marshal General's office, it was announced by the New York Chapter, American Red Cross. Under the new plan, the postoffice will accept mail for a prisoner of war immediately after official information that he has been captured by Germany is received. Previously, relatives in this country were compelled to wait until they received his permanent camp address.

SURPRISE!

NEW YORK — (INS) — If your cigar store doesn't have your favorite brand of cigarettes you can always find them in Tombs prison. Timothy Moriarty indulged in strong language when the woman proprietor of a store couldn't give him the brand he wanted. He was sent to the Tombs overnight. Arriving in court the next morning, he waved a pack of his favorite cigarettes and told the judge he could get all he wanted in prison.

He's training pilots for Uncle Sam

Lieutenant Donald H. Day, P.E. employee, now instructing fliers.

Donald H. Day, in the days before Pearl Harbor, was an electrical helper down at P.E.'s Conowingo Hydro Station. With the call to arms, Don went to Camp Meade, Maryland, then to Fort Bragg, N. C., where he was promoted to Corporal.

Next came a transfer to Maxwell Field, Alabama, as an air cadet. In May, 1943, Don became a bomber pilot and since then has been twin-engine bomber pilot instructor charged with giving the final phase of training to boys seeking their wings.

From electrical helper to bomber pilot instructor—such is the change wrought by war for America's youth.

All America has thrilled to the outstanding speed with which our shipyards have been turning out fighting craft. Talented designers, efficient production men, skilled workmen...all have played a part in this record-breaking performance. One more very important part is that of electricity. More electricity is being used today for shipbuilding operations than ever before, and in each case it results in saving time and labor.

Shipbuilding is just one of the scores of wartime industries in this five-county area whose demand for electric power, even at record new peaks, has been met on time despite the shortage of essential materials and more than 1080 of our trained employees away in the armed forces.
